SATURDAY, MAY 27, TO BE POPPY DAY IN BETHEL

Saturday, May 27, was designated as "Poppy Day" in Bethel in a proclamation issued Wednesday by the Selectmen. The proclamation called upon all citizens of the town to observe the day by wearing the American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary poppy in memory of the World War dead. The proclamation stated:

"Whereas, in the great crisis of the World War the young men of Bethel offered their services to our country with an exalted spirit of patriotism, numbers of them sacrificing their lives in that service;

"And, Whereas, the same exalted spirit of patriotism is needed today for the service of our country in its peace-time difficulties;

"Therefore, we, the Selectmen of the Town of Bethel, urge all citizens to recall the spirit of these gallant dead and renew the memory of their high patriotic service by the wearing of the American Legion Auxiliary memorial poppy on Saturday, May 27.

"To that purpose, we do hereby proclaim Saturday, May 27, Poppy Day in the Town of Bethel.

FRANK A. BROWN,
JOHN H. HOWE,
CARROLL E. ABBOTT,
Selectmen of Bethel.

IMPORTANT MEETING TOMORROW NIGHT

Another moving and enthusiastic meeting will be held tomorrow (Friday) night at the upper hose house. This will be the third or fourth effort to gather enough interested people to form a permanent organization and deserves the attention of all loyal Bethelites.

It was easy enough last Fall to draw a large attendance at every meeting for this purpose, and a good fair was presented with a few weeks' preparation. Much more can be accomplished with early planning and it is hoped a representative group will be on hand at 8 p. m. daylight time.

"SIX KLEPTOMANIACS" TO BE PRESENTED AT NEWRY

Mrs. Reynolds, an advertiser for Kleptomaniacs, Carrie Wight Inez Gray, a sympathetic friend, Susan E. Wight, Clara Reynolds, the real (?) kleptomaniac, Bertha Rogers, Claudia Snell, modiste and dressmaker, Amy Hanscom, Mrs. Thaddeus Lynch, who does fingernails and gives facial massage, Ida Wight, Bridgette De Flanagan, a Kleptomaniac who can "trace her descendants back as far as Iver they made them," Phoebe Hilton, Crocus Washington Jones, a "Kleptomaniac recommended by President Roosevelt," Ethel Vail, Madam Jollette, who had "hoped to be the widow of ten men, but is the widow of only one," Winnifred Cobb, Jennie, a maid who doesn't like "sprinkling," Eollin Taylor, Carrie Brown, "def flying angel," Carola Cameron.

The show starts at 7:30 standard time. This entertainment is presented for the benefit of the church at North Newry. The Grange has given the use of the Hall and it is sincerely hoped that there will be a good attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Maxon of Portland are spending a two weeks vacation with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Sanborn and grandmother, Mrs. I. M. Kennison.

NEW ACADEMY PLANNED WITH EVERY SCHOLASTIC CONVENIENCE

THREE-STORY FIREPROOF BUILDING TO TAKE THE PLACE OF FIFTY-TWO YEAR OLD STRUCTURE NOW OUTGROWN

Alumni and friends of Gould Academy will be interested in Principal Hanscom's announcement of the general description of the new school building which will be erected this summer on the site of the present Academy. Mr. William Bingham 2d, of Bethel, donor of the new building, has given the school the William Bingham Gymnasium, the Marlor True Gehring Students' Home and the Senior Master's Residence and this latest gift is another instance of his unbounded generosity to Gould Academy. This fourth splendid addition to Gould's campus will also be designed by the well known Boston firm of architects, Coolidge and Carlson.

The new building will be three stories in height and of fireproof construction of brick and concrete with limestone trimmings. The frontage on Church Street will be 85 feet wide and situated fifteen feet back of the front of the present Academy building. The portico will be supported by large limestone pillars which will preserve in general the architecture of the front of the present Academy and resemble the design of the other buildings on the campus. The main part has a width of 59 feet and extends back 147 feet from the front entrance.

A War Memorial will be placed in the vestibule and a trophy cabinet in the spacious lobby. On this first floor will be the study hall, two classrooms, library, book room, offices and reception room. At the end of the corridor is the study hall which will have a stage for use in public speaking, moving pictures and chapel programs.

On the second floor are four

LEGION TO HELP AUBURN FIRE SUFFERERS

At a Council meeting of the American Legion at Locke Mills Wednesday night it was decided to gather old clothing and staple products for the fire sufferers at New Auburn. Representatives from the George A. Mundt Post or Jackson Silver Post will call at every home in this section before Sunday. Everything collected will be gathered at South Paris Sunday morning and taken to New Auburn.

This is an opportunity for all to help in a good work—the need is urgent and should be met promptly.

East Boston Mother Tells a Secret

How do you keep your children so nice and healthy? This question pleases Mrs. McKay, who now tells her neighbors: "I happened to hear about

Dr. True's Elixir

Laxative Worm Expeller

through a relative—as my little boy was for some time troubled with loss of appetite, restlessness at night and at times was very fretful, I decided to try Dr. True's Elixir. . . . He began to improve immediately and in a very short time he was well. . . . I would never be without it."—Mrs. E. G. McKay, 429A Saratoga St., E. Boston (Mass.).

Signs of Worms are: Constipation, deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, offensive breath, hard and full stomach with pains, pale face, eyes heavy, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, etc.

Dr. True's Elixir laxative-worm expeller is a pure herb medicine . . . mild and pleasant to take.

Successfully used for 81 years.

OVER THE HILL

(Written for Lone Mt. Grange by Mrs. George Learned of Andover.)

Over the hill to the poor-house,
This is the theme today,
With nothing in our pockets,
With which our bills to pay.

No more ice creams and sodas,
Will grace our humble board,
And no more high cost living
Will we ever yet afford.

We've come to the end of our journey,
It's been merry, long and grand,
It's now we must meet our trouble,
With willing hearts and hands.

We've paid the price of folly,
We've reaped what we have sowed,
There is nothing left for us to do
But try and bear the load.

There's always a silver lining
To the darkest clouds that rise,
And there's always a patch of the blue
Somewhere, in the somewhat cloudy skies.

So it's over the hill to the poor-house,
We'll merrily go our way,
And take with us fond memories
Of those bright and better days.

When we dined on the choicest beef steaks,
And scorned the lowly hash,
When all our hearts were free from care
And our pockets full of cash.

Now we have come to the cross-roads,
We'll humbly make our bow,
For we'll never know what happened to us,
A hundred years from now.

THE LITTLE BOYS' LAMENT

A. T. Warden, in Judge

I'm going back to gran'pa's,
I won't come back no more
To hear remarks about my feet
A-muddyn' up the floor.
They're too much said about my clothes,
The scoldin' 's never done—
I'm goin' back down to gran'pa's,
Where a boy kin have some fun.

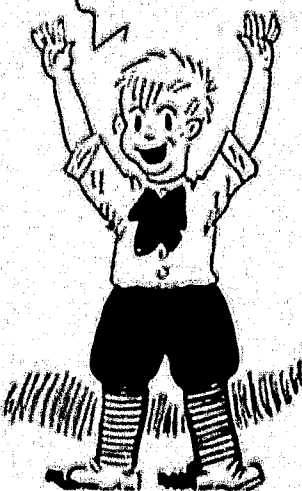

I dug up half his garden
A-kittin' worms for bait;
He said he used to like it
When I laid abed so late;
He said that pie was good for boys
An' candy made 'em grow
Ef I can't go to gran'pa's
I'll turn pirate fast you know.

He let me take his shot-gun,
An' loaded it fer me.
The cats they hid out in the barn,
The hens flew up a tree;
I had a circus in the yard
With twenty other boys—
I'm goin' back down to gran'pa's,
Where they ain't afraid of noise.

He didn't make me comb my hair
But once or twice a week;
He wasn't watchin' out for words
I didn't order to speak;

It is said that the human body contains 10,000,000 nerves. We believe the theory is correct and we are quite certain that some radio programs get on all ten million of them.

He told me stories 'bout the war
An' Injuns shot out west,
Oh, I'm goin' down to gran'pa's,
Fer he knows wot boys like best.

He even run a race with me,
But had to stop an' cough;
He rode my bicycle an' laughed
Bec'as he tumbled off;
He knew the early apple-trees
Around within a mile.
Oh, gran'pa was a dandy
An' was "in it" all the while.

I bet you gran'pa's lonesome,
I don't care what you say;
I seen him kinder cryin'
When you took me away.
When you talk to me of heaven
Where all the good folks go,
I guess I'll go to gran'pa's,
An' we'll have good times, I know.

THE WOMEN WHO WAIT

Minna Irving, in Boston Pilot

He went to the war in the morning,
The roll of the drums could be heard,
But he paused at the gate with his mother
For a kiss and a comforting word.
He was full of the dreams and ambitions
That youth is so ready to weave,
And proud of the clank of his sabre
And the chevrons of gold on his sleeve.

He came from the war in the evening,
The meadows were sprinkled with snow,
The drums and the bugles were silent,
And the steps of the soldiers were slow.

He was wrapped in the flag of his country
When they laid him away in the mold,
With the glittering stars of a captain
Replacing the chevrons of gold.

With the heroes who sleep on the hillside
He lies with a flag at his head,
But, blind with the years of her weeping,
His mother yet mourns for her dead.

The soldiers who fall in the battle
May feel but a moment of pain,
But the women who wait in the homesteads
Must dwell with the ghosts of the slain.

Ticket to Sparta

By EMILY V. SPEARS

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service

WHEN Peggy Burleson's mother found her blamlessly crying over a bunch of dead violets, she decided something must be done.

"But," protested Peggy, when her mother had explained her plan, "I don't want to go to see Aunt Helen. I want to stay right here in Longhope, where Dick is."

In the end Mrs. Burleson won her point. And two weeks later Peggy was comfortably established in her aunt's luxurious New York apartment, leading a gay life.

And of course Peggy had a good time.

Then suddenly, early in the afternoon of her birthday, a week after her visit began, Peggy suddenly decided she couldn't spend another hour in New York.

She was going home. She couldn't go back even for an explanation to her aunt's apartment. Her aunt wouldn't understand.

She hailed a taxi and hurried to the station. It wasn't until she opened her purse to pay the taxi man that she saw she had only two or three dollars. She paid him. Then she stopped to consider what to do next. She'd telephone her aunt—leave word with a maid that she'd gone home for the night. She couldn't make explanations. It was too inconsiderate of her to do it.

She'd buy a ticket that would take her as far as possible on her way. Then, if the conductor remembered—he might forget and let her ride a few stations extra, perhaps the whole way—she'd get off the train, wherever he put her off, and perhaps she could walk the rest of the way.

A crazy plan, of course, but to Peggy at the moment it seemed beautiful.

Fortunately a maid's voice answered her telephone call. There was little surprise in the well-trained, "Yes, Miss," but that was all. Peggy had banked on that. Aunt Helen had high-class servants that never bitted an eyelid, no matter what happened.

Peggy's eyes blurred as she worked her way to the head of the line for her ticket. She pushed two dollars and a quarter through the grating. "How far will that go toward Longhope?" she asked the ticket salesman. "To Sparta," he answered. All right, ticket please," said Peggy. And he gave it to her, with thirteen cents change.

She had to wait half an hour for her train. But that was all right. The maid had told her that her aunt was away at a card party and wouldn't be home till five-thirty. Snow was falling as the train emerged from the tunnel just beyond the station. Small, business-like flakes. But what was snow to Peggy? She saw violets floating through the air. Sparta was a long way from Longhope. But if she couldn't walk the distance in the icy snow—oh, well, something would happen.

The warmth and regular motion of the train lulled Peggy to sleep. A firm but gentle tap on the shoulder awakened her an hour or so later. She looked up to find the conductor leaning over her.

"Excuse me, Miss," he said. "Where was your ticket to?"

Silently Peggy produced it.

"We've passed Sparta, Miss. Tomkins is the next stop."

"Oh, yes," said Peggy, glad that she had been asleep when the station was called. "I'm sorry. I'll just get off at the next station."

"Twenty-one cents," said the conductor.

"But—" demanded Peggy.

"Can't help it. I called the station. You'll have to pay."

"Pardon me," said a voice behind her, to the conductor. "The young lady wants to go to Longhope. We're together. I have her fare from Sparta the rest of the way."

The conductor grunted a dissatisfied sound as he accepted a ticket from Dick, and looked at him a bit as he laid into the seat beside Peggy.

But that didn't matter to Peggy and Dick.

"You see," he explained, as his hand sought and clasped hers, "it's our birthday. I remembered. And

SOUTH WOODSTOCK

May 14—Mother's Day. A day of memory filled with recollections of mother. Mothers everywhere; but most intimately of our own dearest of mothers. The mother who has guided our erring footsteps along the path of understanding. Blessed, blessed be the name of Mother.

Today there have been several persons at the graves of loved ones who rest in Union Cemetery in So. Woodstock. The family lot of Henry and Elmina Fuller Whitman was visited by Robert Whitman, the youngest son of this most interesting family, who also visited the graves of his paternal grandparents, Jacob and Polly Benson Whitman, and those of many other relatives who are also buried here.

Mrs. Evelyn Barrett is taking care of a young child, whose mother, a Mrs. Swan, is at a local hospital for care and treatment.

Mrs. Florence Benson has been assisting Mrs. Jessie Andrews with her general work the past week.

Albert Felt was at Davis home-stead to visit his sister, Mrs. Eliza Felt Davis, recently and found her much improved from her recent illness so as to be up around and in the most cheerful of spirits.

Charles Harlow of Ridgionville is visiting at the home of his youngest daughter, Mrs. Villa Silver, also with his son, Everard Harlow, and family.

Mr. Giroux and family, who lived on Curtis Hill, has secured a rent at North Woodstock and moved there.

The Braves of Molly Ockett were scheduled to battle with the Bucks of Buckfield Sunday afternoon. There was loud after load of warriors on the trail for council pow wow previous to battle. Reported outcome of battle was many scalps added to the belts of Molly Ocketts.

Mrs. Bernice Davis has recently been entertaining her step-mother, Mrs. Will Dione, and half brother, Herman, from Portland.

Miss Jane Bradbury, head accountant of the Central Maine General Hospital of Lewiston was a visitor of her mother, Mrs. Mary Bradbury of West Paris on May 14. She also called on other relatives.

The teachers of Union School tendered a banquet Sunday night, May 14, at 6:30 P. M., to the parents and school children in honor and in remembrance of Mother's Day. The house and grounds were beautifully illuminated and the happy faces of the children told all too well of the success of the well arranged programme.

Lester Felt was a visitor at Davis homestead May 14, where he talked over all ready made plans to attend Farmington Normal School in September next. Mr. Felt will spend the summer at Prout's Neck, where he will have employment at a summer hotel. He secured the position through our well known hotel employee, Harry Page.

Many years ago when the only mode of travel from Rumford to

I wanted to be with you—I wanted to tell you, to ask you to marry me. I got to your aunt's apartment just after you'd telephoned, and that nice wooden image of a maid was all excited. She told me what you'd said over the telephone—she'd just been thinking of calling a taxi and going to the station to see what was the matter. Seems she knew—well, she knew you and I knew each other. Your old Annie and she are friends—they've corresponded since you came to New York. Anyway—I got to the station a few minutes before the train left and followed you. Sort of lost my nerve, I guess. Seemed funny to take it for granted you'd feel as I do. But you do, don't you, Peggy?"

Dick's rambling talk had been interspersed by little interjections and exclamations from Peggy, quite satisfactory and expressive to him. Darkness was gathering thickly outside the windows, the wind was sighing, and big, white flakes were beating against the warm, lighted windows.

WEST PARIS

The regular monthly meeting and entertainment of the Forty-Four Class will be held in Odd Fellows Hall, Thursday night, May 18th, at 7:30. Rev. Clarence S. Roddy from the First Baptist Church of Portland will be the speaker.

The mothers and children of the United Parish Church were pleasantly entertained Friday evening by the young ladies of Mrs. Maxwell's class. A fine program was enjoyed after which refreshments of sandwiches, cookies and punch were served to about fifty.

Beatrice Smith of Mechanic Falls called on Mrs. H. R. Tuell Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Vinzie Chute and daughter Ruth from Auburn were at A. T. Hollis's over Sunday.

Misses Elizabeth Hollis and Louisa Swan, Mrs. Nettie Chase and Mrs. Dennis Swan were in Lewiston Saturday.

NEWRY

Mrs. Irving French is spending some time at the farm lately.

Ralph Brown made some trips to Hanover last week for hay, lumber and groceries.

George Learned is done hauling pulp to Rumford, for a while, but will continue hauling to Locke Mills as usual.

Clarence Judkins is having some work done on the Bond Farm by Mr. LeMay with his team.

Mrs. D. C. Smith is having some work done on her farm.

Mrs. Helen Swan and little son visited at H. R. Powers' one day last week.

Mother's Day was well remembered in this town last Sunday.

Several truck loads of cattle are being taken to Chase Hill for the summer.

Portland was by oxcart, at intervals of a few miles apart there were country taverns all along the way, where the travelers might rest and quench their thirst, for all taverns had their own special brand of toddy dispensed by the jovial proprietor and his buxom barmaid. All traces of many of these landmarks have been obliterated. A few remain. Among those in evidence of what has been are the spacious grounds, foundation walls and wine cellar of Ye Old Tavern at this place, lying near "Sampson's Wind." This property has recently been sold. There is to be a new building erected on the original foundation. Many memories are stirred. Shall we again see the brilliant lights and hear the gay laughter of the old time revelry?

(By REV. GEORGE LUNNY)

PRAYER

A man goes about his business thinking that God is a million miles away. He can not associate the idea of God with all the noise and bustle and confusion of daily life. One day when the burden of life has grown too heavy to bear alone he locks the door of his office and bows his head upon his desk. Presently from the stillness there comes to his heart an overwhelming sense of the nearness of God. God is in his office and he knew it not. That office is none other than the house of God and the very gate of heaven. And ever afterward his burden is light because of the consciousness of God in his office. What you need and I need more than anything else in the world is to be conscious of God—to realize that He is everywhere in general, but that He is here in particular; not only that He is in His holy temple, but that His holy temple is in us. "If I go away," said Christ, "I will send the comforter." Through prayer we get in touch with Him. This may not be modern and scientific, but I would rather be like Moses than like Darrow.

THE UMBAGOG INTERSTATE LARGER PARISH

The annual meeting of the Um-bagog Interstate Larger Parish will be held on Tuesday, May 23, at nine o'clock in the morning. President F. W. Wight of Newry will preside. The meeting this year will be at the Upton Church. The churches of Newry, Wilson's Mills, Magalloway and Errol will be represented by three delegates each. The early hour of the meeting is to permit of further meetings in the morning and afternoon for the purpose of examining for ordination the pastors, Ronald S. Irons and Clifford W. Laws.

On request for ordination of the pastors the Oxford County Association of Congregational Churches and Ministers, and the Coos and Essex Association of Congregational Churches and Ministers, will meet in special session at the Upton church at ten-thirty o'clock of the same day. The presentation of credentials and the papers on religious experience and doctrinal statements of the candidates will be followed by oral examination by the Council. If the examinations are passed successfully the Council will proceed to ordination in the afternoon at two-thirty o'clock.
Besides representatives from the churches of the two associations several other persons are invited to the Council. The ladies of the Upton Church will serve dinner to the visiting delegates.

The annual meetings of each local church are being held before the annual meeting of the Larger Parish. Delegates to the larger meeting are elected at this time.
State Superintendents, Rev. R. W.
Rondy of Maine, and Rev. R. G.
Armstrong of New Hampshire, will attend these meetings. The people of the Parish are cordially invited to come as there is business of importance to be considered this year.

The members of Bear River Grace will attend church in a body at Sowers next Sunday.
The young women of the Newry church will present a two act comedy and other forms of entertainment at the Bear River Grace Hall, Friday evening, May 19, at 7:30 standard time. The Blue Bird Orchestra of Bethel will assist on the program. The ladies will serve refreshments.

There will be a young people's fellowship supper and rally at the Errol Church on Sunday, May 24.
Supper will be served at six o'clock followed by talks by Miss Mary Stearns, of Concord, New Hampshire, secretary for Religious Education and Young People; also a talk by Miss Carrie Wight of New-
ry. All the young people of the parish over twelve years of age are cordially invited to this meeting.
It is expected that this will be a happy and profitable occasion for all.

Baccalaureate services for the Errol High School will be held in the church, Sunday, May 28th, with

MR. AND MRS. P. C. LAPHAM HONORED BY S. OF U. V. AND AUXILIARY LAST THURSDAY

The district meeting of the Sons of Union Veterans met with the local camp and Auxiliary Thursday evening, May 11. Supper was served by members of the Auxiliary preceding the meeting. Over fifty were present at the supper.

Before the meeting was called to order, Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Lapham were requested to take seats at the front which were decorated with large white bows. Mrs. Harry Hutchinson then announced that they had planned a little surprise for Mr. and Mrs. Lapham in honor of their 35th wedding anniversary which occurred May 7. After the singing of "Dear Heart, We're Growing Old," the honor guests were asked to follow strings which were woven around various articles in the room and which finally led to the platform where a table decorated with pink and white crepe paper with a Maybasket suspended from above looked attractive. Upon the table were a lamp and a decorated cake which were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Lapham by the reading of an original poem, followed by singing "When Your Hair Has Turned to Silver." Mr. and Mrs. Lapham expressed grate-fulness to the Sons of Union Veterans and Auxiliary for this thoughtfulness.

The Sons, then held their meeting with the initiation of two candidates, the work being done by the visiting camps from Bath and South Paris in a pleasing and efficient manner.

The Sons meeting was followed by the meeting of the Auxiliary.
Dept. Vice President Geneva Buck of South Paris was present and inspected the books of secretary and treasurer. The work of the order was then exemplified by local members assisted by members from South Paris, and one son was given the obligation and became a member of the Auxiliary.

About forty attended the meetings, including visitors from Farmington, Bath, and South Paris.

The Blue Ridge Mountain Pals held their meeting last Wednesday evening at the school house. This was a rehearsal for the program which will be given at the Cabin, Friday night. They also hung the Smoky Mt. Boys a Maybasket.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Cole and family, Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Jordan and family, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Dunham and family, and Mae Coolidge were Sunday guests at Elton Dunham's.

Mr. and Mrs. Del-Howe of Gorham, N. H., were in town Sunday.
They expect to move to their place here very soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Herrick were callers at Newton Bryant's Sunday.
Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Dunham and Carl Brooks also called there.

Mr. and Mrs. Durward Lang and son Merle spent Sunday with Mrs.
Lang's sister, Mrs. Clarence Ring at East Sumner. They also called on Mr. Lang's parents at West Paris.

William Gorman spent the day with Newton Bryant last Thursday.
Mrs. Margaret Bryant visited Mrs. Herbert Ring at Bryant Pond last Friday.

Wilmer Bryant and Wesley Ring are playing for Mr. Record, who has recently purchased the Cash place.

The Smoky Mt. Boys hung the Blue Ridge Mt. Pals a Maybasket last Wednesday night.

The Christian Endeavor meeting was held last Tuesday evening.
Norma Ring was leader.

Rev. Clifford W. Laws as the preacher. A similar occasion will take place in the Wilson's Mills church on the same day in the afternoon with Rev. Ronald S. Irons as the preacher.

REBEKAH DISTRICT MEETING A SUCCESS

Degree Worked and Memorial Service Given at Evening Session
Before Host of Visitors

The district meeting of District
No. 7 was held last Monday with Sunset Rebekah Lodge. The meeting was opened at two o'clock by Noble Grand Julia Brown. The following guests were among those introduced: Belle Lewis of Auburn, president of the Rebekah Assembly of Maine; Effie Merrill of Dover-Foxcroft, vice president of the Assembly; Laura Hardy, warden of the Assembly, who was the official visitor; Bertha Davis, district deputy president of District
No. 7; Molly Holt, district deputy president of District No. 6; Addie Mann, inside guardian of the Rebekah Assembly of Maine; and Marcia P. Taylor and Hazel Hodgdon, junior past president and outside guardian, respectively, of the Rebekah Assembly of New Hampshire.

The address of welcome was given by Susan Edwards of Sunset Rebekah Lodge, with the response by Ida Chapman of Mt. Pleasant Rebekah Lodge of South Paris; followed by a very interesting question period. There were 112 present at the afternoon session.

At 6:15 a bounteous banquet was served at the Methodist dining room by members of the Ladies Aid of that church.

At the evening session the degree was conferred on two candidates by the staff of Onward Rebekah Lodge of West Paris, and the memorial service was given by Mt. Hope lodge of Norway. There were about 175 present at the evening meeting. There were a number of New Hampshire guests, coming from Randolph, Jefferson, Gorham and Berlin.

LOCAL BOY RECEIVES IMPORTANT PROMOTION

The paragraphs below, which appeared in a recent issue of a Lewiston paper, will be of interest to many people of Bethel and vicinity:

"Roger T. Sloane, 179 College street, a resident of this city since 1922, has been appointed manager at Presque Isle agency of the National Biscuit Co., effective May 1.
"Mr. Sloane became connected with the National Biscuit Co. in 1920, when upon leaving the employ of the W. S. Libby Co. where he held the position of purchasing agent, he became district salesman covering Auburn and surrounding towns. Later he was made special salesman covering Maine and New Hampshire, and from this capacity he was promoted to his present position.

"Mr. Sloane married Elizabeth Clark of this city in 1919. He is a member of the local post of the American Legion, and of the United Commercial Travelers, Twin City Council."

Roger Sloane is the son of Mrs.
Bessie Sloane of Bethel. He was born in Albany and received his education at the Town House
School, the Bethel grammar school, Gould Academy, and graduated from Norway High School in the class of 1918. He went to Auburn where he was employed in the Lunn & Sweet and Cushman & Hollis shoe shops for a number of years. They are nicely settled in their new home at 28 Mechanic St., Presque Isle.

One of the marks of good manners is that the possession of them does not make others uncomfortable and ill at ease.

The friend who always finds some excuse for justifying some fool action of yours may not be the best for you, but he is sure a source of a lot of genuine comfort.

GOULD DEFEATS RUMFORD 10-7

Fans 17—Allows Three Hits After First Inning

At Thursday, Gould Academy defeated Rumford in the fourth victory in five games and doggedly held on to the lead place in the Oxford County League. Things looked dark in the first frame when the first man, Gerrier, doubled, followed by a single for Bennett, a triple for Additon and another single by Stewart. Gould scored three runs with still one out. From then on Browne Rumford helpless, allowing three hits in the remaining four frames and striking out 17 men. Daniels, fleet catcher, led the attack with three singles, while the other helped himself to a triple. A single, Paul Daniels, Freshman outfielder, was up to his old tricks again, doubling with the bases loaded and two men out. His four hits have kept Gould in the lead this Spring.

Rumford, Gerrier, second man and pitcher, was the only one to secure more than one hit. He opened the game with a double in his last trip to the plate he hit. Garret pitched nice ball four innings, holding Gould to hits but the winners got at in the fifth when D. Daniels doubled, Martinson singled, Glover hit by pitcher's error, and Paul Daniels doubled.

GOULD EASY VICTORS AT THE FRYEBURG TRACK MEET

Taking twelve first places, seven seconds and seven thirds in a list of fourteen track and field events, the Gould Academy track team conquered Fryeburg Academy at Fryeburg, Monday afternoon, by a score of 38-38. Captain Trafton Bartlett was high point man of the meet with three firsts and a second for a total of eighteen points. Stuart Lane piled up two firsts, a second, a third, and a tie for third for fourteen and one-half points. The remaining points were contributed by Vall, Glover, Norris Brown, Douglas Daniels, Floyd Thurston, Lester Hale, Norman Hale, Richard Carter, John Thorpe, Walter Grover, and Arthur Hill.

The Gould team scored as follows:

100 yd. dash; Thorpe 1, N. Brown 2. Time 11:1.
Pole Vault; Vall 1, Lane 2.
1 Mile; Glover 1, R. Carter 2. Time 5:11.
Shot Put; T. Bartlett 1, Distance 37 ft., 6 inches.
220 yd. dash; N. Brown, Thorpe, A. Hill.
High Jump; T. Bartlett 1, Lane and N. Hale tied for third. Height 5 ft., 1 inch.
High hurdles; T. Bartlett 1, D. Daniels 3.
Discus; D. Daniels 1, Lane 3. Distance 103 feet.
440 yd. dash; Lane 1, N. Brown 3. Time 47:1.
Broad jump; Daniels 3.
Low hurdles; T. Bartlett 2, D. Daniels 3.
Hammer throw; F. Thurston 1, W. Grover 2. Distance 103 feet.
Half mile; S. Lane 1, Glover 2. Time 2:21.
Javelin; L. Hale 1. Distance 133 feet.

Glover showed unusual stamina by distancing the field early in the mile, coasting in to an easy win; and later coming in for an easy tie with Lane in the half mile. Thorpe showed real sprinting ability as he led a field of six to the tape in the hundred, and copped a second in the 220. Norris Brown showed much of his last year's fighting spirit by taking first in the 220 and placing in both the 100 and 440 yd. dashes. Thurston and Grover had things pretty much their own way in the hammer and both showed a decided improvement during the last few weeks of practice.

GOULD TEAM BATTING FOR .250 AVERAGE

Paul Daniels Sets Pace with 375—Whitman and Browne Share Second Honors

Paul Daniels, freshman outfielder, stepped into the batting lead after the first game and has set the pace since. Batting averages compiled after the first five games show only three men batting over .300. The team average of .250 is low but hits have been produced in a pinch. Paul Daniels has been furnishing hits in a pinch consistently while Whitman, Vall, and Martinson have also delivered hits at opportune times.

McNally has produced only one hit so far but his fielding is way above the average. He has committed only one error in the five games played. In the Norway game he made seven assists without an error.

The following are the batting averages:

	ab	r	h	aver.
Paul Daniels	16	6	375
Winfield Whitman	19	6	315
Paul Browne	19	6	315
Douglas Daniels	24	7	291
Clayson Glover	20	5	250
Henry Martinson	20	5	250
Morris Vall	16	3	187
Stanley Allen	19	3	158
Cyril McNally	15	1	966
Team average	168	42	250

GORHAM HIGH PLAYS HERE MAY 25TH

The next home game for the Gould Academy ball tossers will be with Gorham, N. H., High School on Thursday, May 25th. Gorham always has a strong ball club and a real game is expected.

Thus far Gould has played five games, all of them being league games, winning four and losing one. Norway High is still unbeaten in the County League, while Gould holds securely on to second place.

The game on Thursday, the 25th, will test Oxford County teams against White Mountain League material.

GIRL RESERVES HOLD TWO INTERESTING SERVICES

May Breakfast and Mother's Day Service Well Attended

On Friday morning, May 12th forty members of the Girl Reserves held their May Breakfast on Paradise Hill. They left the Marian True Gehring Home at six o'clock, Daylight Saving Time, and reached the rock at about six thirty. After cooking their breakfast over an open fire they returned home singing their Girl Reserves songs and stopping to sing and give cheers before the residence of Dr. Hanscom and the Girl's Dormitory. This annual morning picnic always proves one of the most popular affairs of the season, and many of the girls living out of the town boundaries were entertained this year by girls living in town, in order that they might be able to make the morning trip.

A very interesting Mother's Day service was held at the William Bingham Gymnasium on Tuesday evening, May 16th, seventy-eight mothers and daughters being present. The following program in charge of Mary Tibbetts, president, was presented.

Welcome, Betty Holt, (President) Duet, Wilma and Marguerite Hall Five Interesting Mothers, Betty Hunt, Florine Bean, Dorothy Foster, Alteen Bonis, Rosalie Thurston.

HEATH TWINS CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY WITH PARTY

On Tuesday, May 16, Henry and Henrietta Heath celebrated their tenth birthday at their home on Main Street. Twenty guests, ten boys and ten girls, were entertained by Mrs. Bernice Heath with both indoor and outdoor games. At pinning the tail on the donkey Barker Hopkins and Muriel Hall received first prizes and consolations were awarded Stanley Davis and Wilma Bean. Many gifts were in evidence and cakes were made for the occasion by Mrs. E. W. Eldridge, Mrs. Homer Smith, Mrs. Clifford Miller and the two birthday cakes made by the twins' mother. Refreshments of ice cream, cake, cocoa and candy were served before the guests departed at five o'clock.

SUPERIOR COURT AT RUMFORD

Ami Shank in 1930-31. Mexico claimed that Mrs. Shank's residence, through her father, is Rangely. The verdict was for Mexico for the amount sued, $507.87. The case will be appealed.

Next was the case of Nicholas Morrison of Rumford vs. Samuel Saul Hebert of Dixfield. This was for damages following an auto accident on the Weld-Phillips road last June. Morrison, driving a Plymouth coach, claimed he was forced from the road by Hebert with a Cushman Bakery truck. The verdict was for the defendant.

Dismas Leblanc brought suit against the Peerless Casualty Co. of Keene, N. H. to collect damages of $2,525. In May 1931, Leblanc was driving a car which struck John Gravel, aged four, of Mexico. The little boy was severely injured, his spinal cord severed, and he was paralyzed. At the May term of court last year the jury awarded the child $7,525 from Leblanc. The casualty company paid $5,000, the amount of their policy, also costs and attorney's fees. Leblanc sued the company for the balance he was required to pay. The case was non-suited.

The case of Fred L. Edwards of Bethel vs. Bernard L. Harrington of Greenwood was to recover $300 for trespass and carrying away 20% cords of birch wood. When questioned by Edwards in 1928, Harrington said he bought the wood from Hadakin, who had lived on the property since 1896 although Edwards had paid the taxes. The case was non-suited.

The grand jury reported five indictments Wednesday morning, as follows:

Charles Velush of Rumford, charged with assault upon the person of Hilda J. Arsenault.

Cleophas Chaisson, alias Clifford Chase charged with forgery of a check drawn on the Rumford National Bank for $30, signed Alfred Roy.

Eleanor Bennett of Hartford and Irene Boles alias Reny Boles and Albert Pomerleau of Lewiston, breaking and entering and larceny at the store of S. B. Ellis & Son at Canton on Feb. 25. Larceny of goods to the amount of $41.25 was charged.

Charles Plouffe of Hebron, breaking and entering and larceny at the barn of Amos Foster on April 28. Larceny of three Ford tires and a radiator, of a total value of $12.00 was charged.

John Stanley of Stoneham, breaking and entering and larceny at the camp of Roy Wilhelm. Larceny of a suit of clothes, moccasins and knapsack, to the total value of $28.00 was charged.

On Tuesday of this week four men were sentenced to State prison and three to the County Jail. Irene Boles of Lewiston, charged with breaking into the Ellis store at Canton, was sentenced to serve not more than six nor less than three years at State prison. Albert Pomerleau was sentenced to not more than 36 months nor less than 18 months in State prison on the same charge. John Stanley of Stoneham, was given the same sentence. Norman Marriwell, charged with stealing a Buick roadster belonging to Albert Merrill, from the Ponley and Packard garage in Fryeburg, was sentenced to not less than one year or more than two years at State prison. Charles Plouffe, pleading guilty was sentenced to six months at the County Jail. Donat Blanchard pleaded guilty to illegal possession of liquor and was sentenced to two months in jail, $200 fine, and six months additional in default of payment. Cleophas Chaisson of Rumford, charged with forgery, was sentenced to six months in jail. Charles Velush, charged with assault, was sentenced to eight months in jail. Sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation for two years. Floyd Sessions and Mrs. Yvonne Giroux of Rumford, pleaded guilty to adultery. Mrs. Giroux was sentenced to four months in jail. The sentence was suspended and she was placed on probation for a year. Sessions' case was continued to the November term for sentence and he was released on $1,000 bail.

The second jury was discharged Tuesday.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Antonette Peyton, a student at the southern university of law, resents Professor Thayer's attitude toward her. Thayer is a stern, old man, and there is a stormy ending with bitter recriminations. The tension being increased by Thayer's reproaching Ivy for making a date with him. Thayer threatens each other.

CHAPTER II.—Larry Welch, Ivy's professor at the university, is appealed to by Tony Peyton and his sister's friendship with Ivy. Welch and Tony Peyton love with each other. Welch does not see what he can do in the matter. Then he tells her she is called to Thayer, but in his wife's name.

CHAPTER III.—Larry determines to Thayer and end his association with Tony. Tony persuades him until she has appealed to Thayer. She does so, visiting in his room at a fraternity. Max Vernon, living in the same house, arrives and goes to his room. Vernon leaves the house immediately afterwards, in a state of excitement. He is a bundle, carelessly tied, aptly clothing to be renovated, his arm.

CHAPTER IV.—Welch's appeal to Thayer and her affair with Thayer is over. He determines to see her. Despite Ivy's protestations, he goes and leaves. Carrying a first house janitor, finds her dead, stabbed in the throat. Mr. Marland's police chief, takes her to the case.

CHAPTER V.—The Marland bank, of $100,000, the robber escaped with the money after being and apparently badly wounded. Harvey, famous detective, groggy, obese, and good natured, is investigated by the police. In his place, the bank president, Harvey believes Max Vernon was driving the car in which the money was taken.

CHAPTER VI.—Thayer, Fiske tells Ivy, has been systematically investigating the case. He has realized it. Reagan in Harvey to take charge of the case. Evidence implicates Ivy in both the murder and robbery. Tony Peyton, Larry Welch, Max Vernon are under arrest as murder suspects.

CHAPTER VII.—Harvey interrogates Welch concerning his actions in the murder. Welch explains in his explanation, though he Thayer was alive when he and Harvey and Reagan arrived he is lying, seemingly trying to shield Tony Peyton. He is mystified, his firm conviction that Vernon is the murderer of Thayer and the resulting of incidents merely secondary crime.

located Mike Carmichael in the membership of the fraternity. Reagan explained that Max was in charge of the case and to question him. . . and there was silence for several minutes during which the swarthy eyed the expressionless silence of Harvey with wonder and bewilderment. When Jim spoke, his tone was quiet—a whisper.

"I were here all day on May Mike's face beamed.

"Yes, sir. I was nowhere else."

"Course you knew Mr. Thayer well, didn't you?"

"Mike made an expressive 'I know him very good."

"One fine fellow,"

"Mr. Vernon?"

"He is a fine fellow, Moester."

"You know Miss Antonette?"

"Black eyes of the Janitor, indeed with enthusiasm. 'I her good. She is—'

"e. She is a fine fellow. I understand. Jim produced his golden lock and toyed with it. 'Was Peyton in this house the day Thayer was killed?'

"I sir: she was here."

"e you ever heard of her coming before?"

"no, sir. Ladies, she do not in this fraternity house."

"you see Mr. Vernon on May about half-past one o'clock?"

"sir."

located Mike Carmelino in the basement of the fraternity house. He is a very handsome man and he is very popular. He is seen with a group of friends and they are all having a good time.

"I see him doing two things. First I see him go into Meester Thayer's room, and long time beyond that I see him leave the house."

"You didn't see him leave Mr. Thayer's room?"

"No, sir."

"Where were you when you first saw him?"

"I was cleaning hall on the second floor."

"That was when you saw him go into Thayer's room?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you notice anything queer in the way he looked? Anything different from his regular expression? Was Mr. Vernon mad?"

"How I know was Meester Vernon mad? He go into Meester Thayer's room, but always he do that on account those two fellers is very fine friends forever. No, Meester Hanvey—I cannot say was Meester Vernon mad because I was just cleaning hall and I do not know."

"You like Mr. Vernon? You wouldn't want to see him in trouble, would you?"

"No, sir—I do not be happy to see, Meester Vernon in trouble."

"And so you wouldn't likely remember if he was mad or not?"

Carmelino's black eyes narrowed as they flashed to the face of the detective.

"I would not say something about Meester Vernon I do not know, Meester Hanvey. If I know he is mad, I say he is mad. If I only see his face, I do not tell you I guess he is mad, because Meester Vernon he is always nice to me."

Hanvey nodded approvingly. "Fine boy, Mike. You and I ought to get along great. Now, you say you saw Vernon leave the fraternity house?"

"Yes, sir, I see that."

"Where were you?"

"I was work downstairs—back of the house—when I see Meester Vernon come down before he leave."

"Was he in a hurry? Was he walking fast?"

"Yes, sir—he come down the steps pretty fast."

"Do you remember if he had anything in his hands?"

"Not in his hands, no, sir. But he have a bundle under his arm."

"Do you remember if he was wearing the same suit when he left the fraternity house that he had on when he entered?"

Carmelino hesitated. When he answered it was as though honesty was distasteful. "I feel mos' sure he was not wear the same suit."

"You think he changed his clothes between the time he visited Thayer's room and the time he left the house, er—"

"I think, yes. But I do not know for sure."

"Do you know Mr. Larry Welch?"

"Yes, sir. He is one fine feller."

"Did you see him on May first?"

"No, sir. I did not see him any."

"You didn't see him come to this house or leave it?"

"No, sir. I did not see him at all. Of course I hear everybody talk that he have been here to see Mr. Thayer. But me, I don't set even one eye on him."

"Now, suppose you tell me what happened after Mr. Vernon left the fraternity house?"

"I was work in the back downstairs when I see Meester Vernon go away. Then I get my mop and floor wax and go up to second floor. I do not see anybody when I go up there, so I start waxing the floor and after while I look over and I see Meester Thayer's door is a little bit open. I look again and I see his foot and also his legs, and I think right away it is funny he should be lying down on the floor—because that is funny thing to do."

"Then my mind says to me that maybe Meester Thayer, he is drunk, and I think I will put him on the bed so he can sleep it away. I do not want the other fellers to know Meester Thayer is drunk in the fraternity house because that is not nice except when they have a party."

"I walk to the door. . . . The chunky frame of the janitor seemed to shrivel at the remembrance and there was a wild light in his eyes."

"I go in the room, Meester Hanvey, and right away I see that Meester Thayer he is not drunk, because his throat—his throat."

The janitor covered his face with his hands and rocked back and forth. "He is all blood, Meester Hanvey. I touch him once, and I see he is entirely dead and then Meester Hanvey, something take hold of me—here—and I get frighten scared and I do not know anything more until I am downstairs with Meester Farnum and Meester Gleason and they say, 'What the matter, Mike? And that is all, sir—because anything else I do not remember because I am so afraid when I see that blood.'"

Reagan relaxed as the story finished. He glanced at the prodigious detective to see what effect it had made. Hanvey was lying back in his chair with eyes half closed, apparently oblivious to everything. And when he spoke it was in a casual—almost disinterested—voice, and about something else.

"Who did you like best, Mike—Vernon or Thayer?"

Carmelino did not hesitate. "Meester Thayer, sir. I like him most best."

"Why?"

The swarthy face turned brick red, but the man did not evade.

"I like Meester Thayer best, sir, because I feel like him and me, we are partners."

"Huh? What you mean? Partners?"

"I mean . . . I do not like to say this, sir, because you are policemen, but I promise to tell the truth. Meester Thayer and me, we do much business with each other."

"What sort of business?"

"Whisky."

Reagan sat up very straight. This was something entirely new to him.

"You mean," asked Jim, "that Thayer was a bootlegger?"

Carmelino made a gesture of horror.

"Oh no, sir. Meester Thayer, he is one fine feller. He only get the orders and I buy the whisky for him. It is me which are the bootlegger."

He paused for a moment in obvious embarrassment, and then made a further explanation. "But I am not common bootlegger, Mr. Hanvey. I get whisky only for the college fellers, and always I am careful that it is good stuff."

Jim Hanvey appeared to be absorbed in the mechanism of his pants.

"Are You a Regular Bootlegger, Mike?"

ent toothpick. His eyes were focused on that device when he spoke again to Carmelino.

"Are you a regular bootlegger, Mike?"

"Oh, no, sir. I would not do nothing like that only for the college fellers. The janitor's eyes flashed to Reagan's stern face. "I hope I do not get to jail because I tell you that, sir."

"You won't," promised Hanvey.

"Will he, Reagan?"

"Whatever you say, Chief."

Hanvey pursued his inquiry. "How was this liquor thing worked, Mike?"

"It was the away, Meester Hanvey: Always sometimes the boys give a party which the faculty they do not understand about, so they want liquor. Meester Thayer, he says he knows where he can get real stuff which has never been cut. So they give him the money and he orders it from me."

"I see. . . . And you and he would split the difference, eh?"

"Yes, sir. For real thing, the fellers they pay me one hundred dollars a case. I pay for it sixty dollars a case, and Meester Thayer he take twenty dollars and I take twenty dollars."

"Then you were close friends, eh?"

"Oh, no, sir. Meester Thayer, he is ver' fine gentleman and he would not be friends with no janitor."

"I see. . . . He certainly was a fine gentleman, Mike—no mistake about that. Thayer and Vernon were pretty good friends, weren't they? Did you ever hear them quarrel?"

"No, sir. Not one time even."

"They used to play cards a good deal, didn't they?"

"Maybe so—maybe not. I think maybe so."

"Vernon never mixed up in this liquor business, did he?"

"No, sir. Just Mr. Thayer."

"Huh! What was the last time you bought liquor for him?"

"Let me see. . . . about one week ago, sir. It was a nice party. They wanted two cases."

"Two hundred dollars worth?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you get it?"

"Oh, yes, sir."

"Did Thayer pay for it?"

"Right away quick, sir, all except the forty dollars which he keeps for himself."

"Did Thayer usually pay you when he ordered the whisky or only after the boys paid him?"

"After the fellers they pay him. You see, it is for them and so he should not pay me until he get the money off them."

"And when he died, Mike—did he owe you anything?"

"No, sir. Meester Thayer, he did not owe me one cent."

"Good," Hanvey holstered himself to his feet, and nodded to the janitor. "That'll be all, Mike."

"You do not ask me no more questions?"

"Nope. Nothing else, I'm much obliged for everything."

"Thank you, sir."

Reagan led the way into the hall and thence upstairs to the main floor.

"What now, Hanvey? Would you like to see Max Vernon's room?"

"You've searched it, haven't you?"

"Yes."

"Find anything?"

"Not a thing. But I thought—"

"My God! you're a thorough bird. Well, let's go. But Lordy! how I hate those steps."

Hanvey pointed to the top floor and Reagan conducted him into a small but handsomely furnished room, resplendent with pen-pots, pillows, tennis rackets and numerous lithographs depicting pulchritudinous damsels in various conditions of deshabille.

But despite the markedly collegiate tone, there was more than a hint of taste in the general arrangement. In a corner was a delicate statuette perched on a teakwood tabouret. And over the mantel was a collection of curious weapons: A fencing foil, a brass-knife, a Malay kris, an Arab scimitar, a rusty revolver of Civil War days, a Philippine bolo, a bow and arrow of genuine Indian make. Hanvey glanced at them, and then at the arrangement of the room.

It was cozy, in a youthful, happy-go-lucky sort of way. Hanvey casually opened the dresser drawers and rummaged indifferently through the masses of expensive linen. He opened the door of the hanging closet and exclaimed over the multitude of tailored suits disclosed.

"Vernon sure must be a snappy dresser, John."

"Looked that way to me," answered Reagan, enviously. "I at ways did wish I could afford them kind of clothes. But there ain't a suit in yonder that cost less'n a hundred bucks."

Hanvey sank into a chair and lighted a cigar. "Ain't it tough to think of a kid like Vernon having it easy like he do and then getting mixed up in a case like this?"

"You tell 'em, Jim. That's one reason I was glad to get you on the case. They're a nice set, these kids. I didn't used to think so. I thought they were a bunch of crazy high-hats, but, by golly! they ain't. I haven't met a one who didn't strike me that he'd be a real guy if he wasn't so damn educated."

Hanvey moved his head laboriously toward the mantel.

"What's all the military equipment?" he asked, referring to the knives and swords on the wall.

"I asked about that," said Reagan. "It seems Vernon has traveled a good deal and he's sort of collected these things. That funny looking one is from where the Malays live. I think they call it a kris. And that one over the clock is a bolo, or whatever it is the Filipinos use. Vernon was a nut about 'em."

"Funny bunch. . . . But at that I guess it's more sensible than collecting stamps or art things." He blinked. "You've looked all through the room, John?"

"Everywhere. I'm sure I didn't miss a thing."

"You never can tell. . . . Just to make sure, though, we'll make one more search."

Reagan started with the dresser. He rummaged through the drawers and into every corner. He inspected every ornament and spot of dust on the mantel. He looked behind pennants and pictures which were tacked on the wall.

He opened the door of the hanging closet, where he commenced a systematic search into every pocket of every suit of clothes.

It was a tedious job and Reagan—glancing occasionally into the room—was quite sure that Hanvey's suggestion for a new search had not been entirely without ulterior motives.

The prodigious body was settled snugly into the big chair; the pudgy hands were folded contentedly across the massive mozzanine and Jim Hanvey was as far as the naked eye could discern sleeping superbly.

Sleeping! Or was he? The longer Reagan was with Hanvey, the less he understood the big man. At times he appeared to be obtuse; at times brilliant and at times just plain dumb. Reagan returned to his task. If Hanvey wanted a search he'd dare call get one. Reagan had been over every inch of the ground before. . . . but he was determined to do this job as thoroughly as he had the first.

And then the face of the room was shattered. A sharp cry from the closet.

Reagan's eyes unfastened slowly, but he exhibited no other excitement even when Reagan leaped into the room holding something gingerly between his thumb and forefinger.

"Good! A. Chief look here!" Jim eyed the trophy curiously.

"The knife. . . . It's a knife. And there's blood on it, too. Where'd you find it, John?"

"In the corner of the closet. On the floor. I—I don't understand, Jim, because I looked there day before yesterday. . . . He was more excited than he cared to show. "But we've got something here, Chief—no matter if I did overlook it before. With this, it ought to be plain sailing."

"How come, John?"

"Because," snarled Reagan triumphantly—"that is the knife that killed Thayer, and Chief—I've got another idea."

"Good for you, John. What is it?"

Reagan stepped swiftly to the mantel. He designated a spot on the wall where the papering was a lighter color.

"Unless I'm all wrong, Hanvey," he said, "this knife belongs right in that spot. And if it does, there ain't much question but that Max Vernon is the man who did it."

LOCAL LEGION AUXILIARY TO SPONSOR POPPY SALE

"The patriotic spirit of America which enabled the nation to put forth its great World War effort is symbolized in the little red memorial poppy," Grace F. Coburn, President of the George A. Munde Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, declared today as the Unit members continued preparations for the observance of Poppy Day here Saturday, May 27. She expressed belief that the wearing of the poppy in honor of the war dead would help reawaken a strong spirit of patriotism for the nation's peace-time efforts.

"The poppy is the badge of remembrance for those who sacrificed their lives in the country's service. It stands for the highest type of patriotism that we can conceive. It recalls the spirit of those days when every American was dedicating his energies and resources to the national cause and when life itself was not too much to give for the country."

"Remembering these days it is difficult to understand how Americans can be daunted by the country's present difficulties. A people who only fifteen short years ago united with such devotion and energy to meet a war emergency, most certainly have the power to meet any emergencies of peace. The poppy, that symbol of patriotic sacrifice, should awaken in all our hearts a deeper conception of our own duties to our country today and inspire us to give in peace the type of service the men who died among the poppies in France gave in time of war."

Volunteer workers from the American Legion Auxiliary will offer poppies on the streets all day Saturday, May 27. The poppies have been made by disabled veterans and all contributions received will be used for the Auxiliary's relief and rehabilitation work among the disabled men and their families.

Herbert Carter returned Sunday from a three week's visit with his daughter, Miss Alice Carter, in Boston.

Mrs. Dana Philbrook and Clarence Philbrook spent several days last week with Mrs. Philbrook's daughter, Mrs. Raymond Jackson. Little Barbara Jackson returned home with them.
